

CLASS:-11TH,

POLITICAL SCIENCE

NOTES,

CHAPTER:- 4.

The balance of power between the two is

- The drawbacks of the Indian Parliamentary system the possibility of a hung Parliament remains .
- The reason is to have multi-party system in India Times in which no party gets a clear majority . It is also called the political instability .

Due to the adoption of a parliamentary system in India :-

- If the lime directly to the President, he becomes very powerful and he can become autocratic dictator or .
- In a large country like India, the direct election of the president will create enough chaos .
- Indian politicians had more experience of the British political system and that they were impressed
- The system has been successful in difficult times and there is no harm in it .

The age and tenure for president:

Minimum & 2370 presidential contest, the minimum age should be 35 years and elected a president's term is 5 years . Any former president re-election is .

President of the impeachment process:

- President gets impeached him for his removal from office, it is then a violation of the Constitution that the President On the impeachment of the President of either House of Parliament, whether it can be presented to the Lok Sabha or Rajya Sabha .
- More than two-thirds majority in the House the proposal to require More than two-thirds majority in the House if the proposal is received by the House on the other charges made against him are checked .
- the other two-thirds majority in the House accepted the charges against him are checked .
- the other two-thirds majority in the House accepted the charges if the President your post will shrink .
- So far, any president has not been impeached