The Miller, his son, and thier donkey

A miller and his son were driving thier donkey to a fair. On the way they met a group of girls. Look there ! cried one of them. Did you ever see such fools, to be trudging along on foot when they might be riding ? The miller hearing this quietly asked his son to get on the donkey, and walked along merrily by his side. Presently they came to a group of old men in serious debate. There! said one of them, It proves what I was saying. Do you see that idle young rogue riding, while his old father must walk? Get down, you boy! Let the old man rest his weary limbs. Upon hearing this the father made his son dismount and got up himself.
