Chapter 11

GOOD BYE, PASHA BEGUM

Bindi is bored of sightseeing monuments on her holiday and wants to do something more exciting. Suddenly, she time travels into the Mughal era. Read on to know what happens next.

I am sure all this marble stuff is very beautiful, but right now I'm hungry, thought Bindi grimly. 'Shahjahan on an empty stomach is definitely not my scene.'

The family was on holiday in Delhi and her Baba, the amateur historian, was deciding where they would go. In the last four days they had overdosed on history. They had trudged around the Qutub Minar, Humayun's Tomb, and now the Red Fort.

Monuments are okay but what about shopping at Janpath? Chaat at Bengali Market? A shopping mall... please?
