About the Author

Beverly Naidoo (born 1943) is a South African childrens author who lives in the UK. She grew up in South Africa under apartheid laws that gave privilege to white children. Her first three novels, Journey to Jo'burg, Chain of Fire, and Out of Bounds are set in South Africa in the times when the country had apartheid. Journey to Jo'burg won Britains The Other Award. Her book The Other Side of Truth was judged the best children's book of the year 2000 by a British subject and won her the Carnegie Medal. Naidoo has also written several picture books for children, including the 2004 picture book Babas Gift, which is set in contemporary South Africa. The Great Tugof War and Other Stories retells many African folk tale.
