Read this paragraph on apartheid.

From 1948 till 1994, South Africa made laws based on racial discrimination. Native Africans and European settlers were divided under apartheid. More than three million black citizens were forced to move from their homes to separate neighbourhoods. Black children were sent to separate, inferior schools, and their families were allocated separate places where they could live, work and travel. Apartheid denied children the right to grow up together with equality, justice and respect.

What type of challenges do you think the apartheid-affected children must have faced.

Can you imagine having to live apart from your parents for most of your childhood
