Alliteration

Alliteration is a literary device in which a series of words having the same first consonant sound occur close together.

Alliteration is usually used in poems, songs, and tongue twisters. For example:

|
Kim kept kicking the ball.

Read the sentences and underline the consonant sounds that produce alliteration.

1. Harry Smith hated humming.
2. Arvind's aunt ate apples all the time.
- 3 The animal allegedly attacked a schoolboy
4. Harry's cat clawed his couch all night.
5. Deepa enjoys watching English films while eating.
6. Mukul bought many matching ties at the market.

7. Lina loves lychees, mangoes, and grapes.

8 Walter wondered if Wally was angry with him.

9 Some people play games and practise dance in the park.

10. Ganesh's giraffe gobbled gooseberries greedily.
