FRANCE REVOLUTION

Topic:- The outbreak of the revolution

In order to pass the proposal to raise taxes Louis XVI called an assembly of the estate. General. on 5 May 1789, 300 representatives from each of the first and second estate and 600 from third estates a total 1200 representatives, gathered in a splendid hall for the assembly.

Representatives of first and second estates were seated in two rows while representative of third estate had to stand at the back.

Representatives of third estate were educated and more prosperous and they believed to represent the whole people of France. peasants and Labours were not allowed in that assembly . however about 40000 letters regarding their grievances were carried by representatives of third estate.

According to principal of monarch each estate Had One vote. LouisXVI wanted to apply the same practice this time also . but representatives of third estate did not agree on this, they wanted voting assembly as a whole and wanted each of the representatives to have only one vote. Louis XVI rejected this new proposal .as a result ,all the representatives of the third estate walked out of the assembly in protest
