WRITING.

Diary Entry

In a diary, you can record your feelings, observations and reactions about different experiences .

It is a very personal piece of writing, written in an informal manner.

Imagine you are Helen Keller. Write a diary entry about the day you first experienced the joy of being able to communicate your thoughts and feelings. You can include the following points in your entry.

What were you able to communicate and to whom?

Describe your emotions happy, excited, relieved.

How did your teacher, Anne Sullivan, react to it?
