Chapter- The portrait of a lady by Khush want Singh

In the 1st paragraph author describes his grandmother with bit astonishment_ he says no doubt his grandmother is old so as are others. He is surprised because she has been seemed with same appearance since past 20 years. He says she has wrinkled face grey hair, that means her oldness is apparent on her face. Even he can't believe that once upon her time she was young and pretty as people told him about. When people said it he observed the hanging portrait of his late grandfather who looks as if he was 100 years old. He has long grey beard which covers the best part of his chest. Best part of chest---heart (broad and open heart). He also describes his outfit that he has worn turban and loose-fitting clothing. Looking at the portrait he feels that how could he be the husband of a young lady, father of the children because he thinks his grandfather could have several grandsons but not husband to have his own children.
